A Message from the Dean  2
Northwestern Law by the Numbers  3
Henry & Emma Rogers Society  4
Honor Roll of Donors  5
I am thrilled to announce that we saw yet another record-breaking year in philanthropic support for Northwestern Law, raising over $31 million in Fiscal Year 2014 (September 1, 2013 – August 31, 2014). This incredible total was made possible by the 4,341 alumni and friends who chose to give back. The personal reasons for donating may vary, but together they prove that our collective support can have a great impact on our law school.

Our fundraising success last year includes many extraordinary gifts, including that of Neil Bluhm (JD ‘62), who made a remarkable gift of $15 million, the largest charitable donation in the Law School’s history. Neil’s generous gift supports scholarships, the Loan Repayment Assistance Program and the Bluhm Legal Clinic. His gift will also be used to help implement our new strategic plan and build ongoing, sustainable support from alumni (see story page TBD). I am truly grateful for the profound commitment Neil and others have made this year.

One such gift of particular note is the $4 million commitment from a group of donors who, through their generous support, enabled us to establish a professorship and debate series in honor of Newton N. Minow (JD ’50). Their gift serves as further proof that a group of individuals can come together to make a significant impact not only for the Law School, but also for a beloved friend and colleague.

Our success over the last year also includes the gifts of 3,379 alumni and friends who collectively gave $2.51 million to the Law School Fund – an essential source of funding that allows us to respond to the most pressing needs of our institution. The year’s total also includes the gifts of 256 members of the Class of 2014, the newest members of our alumni community, who achieved an impressive participation rate of 55% (see page 7). And it includes generous gifts from faculty and staff as we launched our first-ever Faculty and Staff Campaign.

I am humbled by this show of support from all sectors of our community. With it, we will expand our commitment to student financial aid in order to limit the debt burden of our students and respond to the ever-changing and competitive legal market. We will continue to hire the best faculty, recognized worldwide for their scholarship and innovation. We will improve the learning infrastructure at Northwestern Law in order to enhance our students’ educational experience. And we will undertake bold and creative initiatives to meet the demands of a dynamic legal profession, one in which our graduates will work at the intersection of law, business, and technology.

To accomplish this, we look to our community’s participation at every level, from the generous $4 million bequest from Ted Spak (JD ’56) to support scholarships (see story page 8) to the 265 donors who supported our Law School Scholarship Fund through their annual gift.

Without each and every one of the individuals whose names are listed in the following pages, this record-breaking year could not have been possible. When I look at this incredible group of supporters, I see the many individual stories that tie each of us to Northwestern Law, stories that are often linked to fond memories of classmates and faculty. But I also see our shared story of the future of our great law school.

Thank you to all of you who gave in Fiscal Year 2014. Your continued support helps us shape and strengthen tomorrow’s Northwestern Law.

Sincerely yours,

Dan Rodriguez

The Henry and Emma Rogers Society honors and recognizes alumni and friends who have included Northwestern University in their estate plans. Whether it is through a charitable bequest, gift annuity, insurance policy, or other planned gift, members of the Rogers Society have created a lasting legacy of support for students, faculty, research, and programs. Planned gifts create tremendous opportunities for the University and allow Northwestern to transform the lives of future generations.

Northwestern University established the Rogers Society in 1987 in honor and memory of Henry and Emma Rogers. President of Northwestern University from 1890–1900, Henry Wade Rogers was a visionary leader who was instrumental in transforming Northwestern from a small cluster of colleges into a major, nationally recognized university. His wife, Emma Winner Rogers, founded the Northwestern University Settlement Association and was a leader in the suffrage movement. Like Henry and Emma Rogers, our planned giving donors possess a vision for the University’s greatness and have chosen to invest in its future.

We are pleased to honor and recognize the following alumni and friends of the University as members of the Henry and Emma Rogers Society. These individuals have named Northwestern University School of Law as a beneficiary of a planned gift, for which we are grateful.

If you would like to speak with someone about making a planned or deferred gift to Northwestern Law, please contact Camille Licklider, Executive Director of Gift Planning, at 847-467-5891 or camille.licklider@northwestern.edu, or MaryPat Mauro, Director of Major Gifts, at 312-503-2688 or marypat.mauro@law.northwestern.edu.
Honor Roll of Donors

Northwestern University School of Law wishes to thank the following donors whose gifts were received between September 1, 2013 and August 31, 2014. Although every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of this report, we apologize for any inadvertent errors or omissions it may contain. If your records suggest an error has been made in your listing, please contact the Office of Alumni Relations & Development at 312-503-0200 or by email at s-kalsbeek@law.northwestern.edu. We are grateful for your support of Northwestern Law.

Alumni enjoy catching up with each other and with faculty at Reunion 2013.
Congratulations to our newest alumni, the Class of 2014, for achieving 55% participation (256 donors) in your Graduating Class Gift. Special thanks to the 55 who gave at the Young Wigmore level.
Ted Spak JD ‘56 credits his parents for his dedication to higher education. Ted’s mother in particular insisted that each of her four children would receive college educations, despite the family’s limited means. With his parents’ encouragement and his Northwestern Law degree in hand, Ted has had a successful career first as a tax attorney and, eventually, leading a public insurance adjusting firm.

In 1995, Ted demonstrated his gratitude to his parents by establishing the Joseph and Sophie Spak Scholarship Fund in their name. In the years since endowing the fund, Ted has continued to generously support the Law School Annual Fund. But Ted was also determined to ensure that the Spak Scholarship would be awarded in perpetuity, so in 2014, Ted included Northwestern Law in his estate plans. His bequest will be added to the Joseph and Sophie Spak Scholarship.

In an interview with Northwestern Matters, Ted describes his education at the Law School as teaching him “not just how to interpret the law, but more importantly, how to think.” Through his bequest, Ted has succeeded in honoring the impact both his parents and the Law School have made on his career, while also ensuring that future legal scholars will have the same opportunity to earn a Northwestern Law degree.

The Law School continues to play an important role in Ted’s family, as his granddaughter Michelle, is a graduate from the Class of 2005 and also attended the School of Education and Social Policy as an undergraduate. Today, Michelle is Senior Counsel at Duke Energy. She is a member of NU Loyal and recently accepted a position on the Northwestern Alumni Association’s Board of Directors.

Ted is a self-proclaimed bridge addict. He plays six times a week and attends national and regional tournaments. He started playing the game at Law School with his classmate and friend, Marty Appel.
Female exonerees from around the country joined Center on Wrongful Convictions staff, guest panelists, and interested members of the public to discuss issues relating to women and criminal justice at the CWC Women’s Project Conference held in the Bluhm Legal Clinic in March.
Contratulations to the Class of 1963, which celebrated its Reunion in Fall 2013 and achieved the highest 2014 Reunion Class Gift participation rate. 42% of the class made a Reunion contribution.

The legacy of Purple Pride runs deep in the Karaba family. Three generations call Northwestern Law their alma mater. Julie Karaba (JD ’14), a 2010 graduate of Northwestern’s School of Education and Social Policy, graduated summa cum laude from the law school this past May. As alumni of the Class of ’80, her parents, Marsha Hoover and Tom Karaba, were invited to hood Julie on stage at the Convocation ceremony. Not far from their thoughts was Frank Karaba, Tom’s father and a member of the Class of ’51. Julie’s grandfather would have had a lot to be proud of on that special day; Julie received the John Paul Stevens Prize for the highest academic-achieving student in her class. She is currently clerking with Judge Feinerman on the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois and will clerk for Judge Kavanaugh of the DC Circuit for 2015–2016.

Their family has a long history of giving back to the Northwestern Law community. Frank, who passed away in 1996, supported the Law School Annual Fund for many years. His wife, Alice, continues to give to the Law School Fund and is an NU Loyal member. She has been a member of the Wigmore Club for most of the past two decades. Marsha and Tom have been generous donors to the Law School Annual Fund since graduating in 1980. And this year Julie helped her class reach a remarkable 55% participation by contributing to her Graduating Class Gift. Marsha and Tom have served on reunion committees and Julie, as a 3L, was a member of the executive board of the Julius H. Miner Moot Court Competition.

The family’s Northwestern connections extend beyond the Law School. Marsha and Tom’s son, Andrew, is a 2007 graduate of the Weinberg College of Arts and Sciences and is in his final year of the Medical Scientist Training Program at the Feinberg School of Medicine. He and his wife, Sara, both earned PhDs from the Graduate School in 2013 and are expected to receive their MDs next spring. Marsha, a partner at Marshall Gerstein & Borun LLP, and Tom, a partner at Crowley Barrett & Karaba Ltd, are also graduates of the School of Communication. Tom’s father, Frank, was also double purple; he graduated first in his class of about 1,000 in the former Northwestern School of Commerce in 1949. Frank once wrote, “Lest I get too carried away with my own abilities, I always think of a picture that was run in the Chicago Daily News with the top graduates in Northwestern’s five Schools. The fellow who finished No. 1 in Journalism was blind.” Frank’s first job after graduating from Northwestern Law was as a teaching associate at the Law School.

NU Loyal is the giving society that recognizes the thousands of alumni, parents, and friends who make gifts to the University in three or more consecutive years. Annual gifts provide immediate funds that make Northwestern an exceptional place to learn and make a difference.

Any gift you make to the University counts toward membership in NU Loyal. Gifts to Northwestern Law enable us to improve the well-being of our students, fuel innovative approaches to legal education, and foster creative solutions to the myriad challenges of the ever-evolving legal environment.
Northwestern Law scholarship recipients express their appreciation to the donors who contribute to scholarship funding.

Three Generous Alumni Inspire Others to Give Back

Fiscal Year 2014 saw an unprecedented number of donors stepping up and asserting the importance of participation at every level. In an incredible show of support, three donors in particular found unique ways to encourage alumni and friends to support the Law School.

In December, Neil Bluhm (JD ‘62) challenged his fellow alumni to join the John H. Wigmore Club of leadership donors. Any alumnus who had not given a Wigmore gift the previous year could choose to support an annual fund allocation of their choice, including the Scholarship Fund, the Library Fund, and the LLM Program Fund, among others. Neil generously pledged to match $1,000 of each donor’s gift, allocating his match to the donor’s choice of fund. In all, 115 donors participated, ultimately resulting in a 14% increase in Wigmore Club donors to the Law School Fund in 2014.

In May, Chris Lind (JD ‘94) pledged $25,000 in an effort to help the Bluhm Legal Clinic surpass the number of donors achieved in Fiscal Year 2013. If 25 donors made a gift of any size to the Clinic over the course of two weeks, Chris would make this exceptional gift. In all, 38 alumni stepped up to the challenge, and over $58,000 was raised for the Clinic Fund. Their gifts will help ensure that Northwestern Law will remain a leader in clinical education and continue to produce skilled, ethical and reform-minded lawyers. Among those 38 donors, one alumnus and his wife were so inspired by Chris’s gift that they made their own gift of $25,000 to the Clinic.

Finally, this summer, an anonymous donor pledged $100,000 if 500 alumni donated to the Law School between June 1 and August 31. Volunteers from Boston to Mexico City rallied fellow alumni in their cities to participate in this 2014 Summer Road Trip Challenge. This unique fundraising challenge aimed to show our current students that no matter where they go after graduation, they have the support of a strong alumni community. By August 31, 688 alumni had donated, beating the goal by 38% and securing this extraordinary gift of $100,000 for Northwestern Law.
115 new Wigmore members participated in Neil Bluhm’s Wigmore Challenge. Their gifts were matched dollar for dollar toward the Law School Fund allocation of their choice.
38 donors supported the Bluhm Legal Clinic during a two week challenge between May 17–31, helping us secure a matching gift of $25,000. Total raised during the challenge: $58,908!

Three members of the Class of 1967, Mac Deason, Herb Beller and Ed Dunn, visit in the Levy Mayer Courtyard at the 2014 Wigmore reception. The Class of 1967 has a strong history of support for the Law School, endowing both a professorship (the James B. Haddad Chair, currently held by Tom Geraghty (JD ’69)) as well as the Class of 1967 Legal Clinic Fund, established to support faculty who are teaching and engaged in the programs of the Bluhm Legal Clinic. The class has remained close over the past 47 years, with many members meeting regularly for lunch. Additionally, in fiscal year 2014, Herb and Ed, along with Jonathan Sakol (JD ’68), were the first Law School alumni to achieve 40 consecutive years of giving to Northwestern Law.

The John Henry Wigmore Club

The Wigmore Club was founded in 1962, in honor of John Henry Wigmore, Northwestern Law’s first full-time dean. Wigmore was a prolific scholar, songwriter, innovator, and researcher and served as the Law School’s dean from 1901 to 1929 and as a member of its faculty until his death in 1943. Through their leadership annual gifts, Wigmore Club members build on Dean Wigmore’s legacy, helping to foster and stimulate the spirit, scholarship, professional objectives and ideals he inspired during his long tenure.

TED GRIPPO JD ’53
A PLANNED GIFT TO INVEST IN FUTURE SCHOLARS

Looking back on a successful career that included co-founding the Chicago firm Grippo & Elden, Ted Grippo (JD ’53) is quick to acknowledge the positive forces that brought him an exciting and rewarding fifty-three years working in the law. His mother, who had no formal education, repeatedly encouraged him to become a doctor, lawyer or engineer. About his mother, Ted says, “She offered her meager life savings to pay for my tuition to law school when no other funds were available.”

Ted also credits his education from Northwestern Law with providing him opportunities he might not have had otherwise. In 2014, Ted found a creative way to honor both his mother and invest in the future of his alma mater. By combining an outright gift with a gift annuity, Ted endowed the Carmela De Bonis Grippo Scholarship Fund in his mother’s name. “A scholarship in her name to a worthy young student is my way of honoring her sacrifice and dedication to education,” Ted says. He adds, “Giving back to Northwestern Law is my way of saying thanks, and of making the same opportunity available to future generations.”

Ted also recognizes the importance of supporting Northwestern Law annually. He says, “To the extent I am financially able to do so, annual support, especially to the Center on Wrongful Convictions, fulfills my desire to help correct the wrongful convictions of innocent persons.” He adds, “My interest in this cause stems from the research and publication of my recent book about the Sacco and Vanzetti case – one of America’s most infamous wrongful convictions and executions.” His book, With Malice Aforethought: The Execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, was published in 2011.

Ted’s gift demonstrates how to support Northwestern Law with a partially income-tax-deductible gift while securing a regular income stream. In return for a donation of cash, stocks or other assets, you receive a fixed payment each year for the rest of your lifetime. Charitable gift annuities are often attractive to donors who would like to support our mission and receive steady payments during retirement. To learn more about this type of gift, contact MaryPat Mauro at marypat.mauro@law.northwestern.edu or 312-503-2688.
Dikgang Moseneke, deputy chief justice of the South African Constitutional Court, discusses “The People, the Courts, and the Embryonic Jurisprudence of South Africa” after receiving the 2013 Global Jurist of the Year Award. The Bluhm Legal Clinic’s Center for International Human Rights created the award to recognize judges who have substantially contributed to the advancement of international human rights law and international criminal law, particularly those who have shown outstanding dedication to the rule of law and courage in the face of adversity.

SPRING GE LLM ’13
LEADING THE CHARGE IN ENGAGING INTERNATIONAL ALUMNI

With her Northwestern Law degree in hand, Spring moved to Singapore to join WongPartnership, a global firm of more than 270 lawyers. Her experience in the LLM program, working with students from around the world, prepared her well to work for a firm with offices in Singapore, Abu Dhabi, Beijing, Doha and Shanghai.

But Spring didn’t want her relationship with the Law School and her LLM classmates to end at graduation. She says, “I have also made many good friends and built a strong network with people all over the world.” Spring is already putting that network to good use by joining the Law School Fund Board, a group of alumni committed to building annual support for the Law School among alumni and friends. Spring is one of the first LLM graduates to join the board and the first member who lives outside of the U.S.

Through her role on the Law School Fund Board, Spring hopes to get LLM graduates involved internationally, both by connecting with each other and by giving back to Northwestern Law. “I hope that my support of our school will help it continue to fulfill its brilliant mission and vision and extend the benefits of Northwestern Law’s LLM program to future students,” Spring says.

To her fellow LLM graduates, she adds, “Stay connected, stay united, and stay a Wildcat!”

As a student, Spring Ge (LLM ’13) was already aware of the power of collective support. During the 2013 Graduating Class Gift Campaign, Spring rallied her LLM classmates to show their support of the Law School, helping the Class of 2013 secure a record 51% participation. Spring credits the success of the campaign to the committee’s willingness to share their personal reasons for giving back. “The education here has not only enriched my life with valuable experience and exposure, but also enhanced my vision and career perspective tremendously,” says Spring.
Northwestern University School of Law congratulates the winners of the 2014 Firm & Corporate Alumni Challenge

Congratulations to the winner of our 2014 Alumni Challenge March Madness Tournament: Sidley Austin LLP

We would also like to recognize the following firms for achieving 100% participation:
Duane Morris LLP | Marshall Gerstein & Borun LLP
Shericka Pringle, Executive Director of the Bluhm Legal Clinic, made her first gift to the Law School in Fiscal Year 2014 as part of the Clinic’s spring fundraising challenge. She and 37 others helped secure $25,000 in matching funds from Chris Lind (JD ’96) over a two-week period in May. With her gift, Shericka also participated in the first-ever Faculty and Staff Campaign for the Law School. Shericka has worked at Northwestern for fifteen years and has been with the Law School for ten years.
The Law School welcomed 888 donors to the John Henry Wigmore Club this year.
